Verbal Description

Interior / middle segment of of a metate. The thickest portion is 2.6 cm, the thinnest is 1.9. Both upper and lower surfaces are slightly curved. The lower surface is rough, and does not appear to have been ground very much. The upper surface's raised portions are smooth, but I see no gloss. The pores are very large in this piece of vesicular basalt, and the upper surface has an unusually large number of holes. All broken edges and corners are sharp and unrounded. Not drawn.
